Reaching an agreement on child support

If a child lives with only one parent, the other parent is obliged to pay child support or to otherwise ensure that the child's basic needs are met.

Child support is to be used for the child's housing, food, leisure activities and similar. The child support amount is determined by the parents based on the child's needs and the parents' financial situation.

You also need to decide the period that the agreement will cover. A child support agreement can be written so that it covers a short period of time or a longer period of time.

The child is always entitled to receive child support until his or her 18th birthday. After the child's 18th birthday, the child is entitled to receive child support as long as the child is studying full-time in upper secondary school, compulsory school or equivalent, but no later than the day the child reaches 21 years of age.

You can get help calculating child support by using Försäkringskassan's Calculation tool, which you will find at: Calculate child support and create agreement document - Försäkringskassan.

Child support is paid in advance

Child support must be paid in advance each month. For example, the child support amount for December must be paid no later than 30 November.

Child support must be paid starting from the date you no longer live together, and the child does not live an equal amount of time with both parents.

The child support amount is adjusted each year

Child support amounts that have been determined in accordance with Swedish regulations and in Swedish kronor (SEK) must follow general price trends within Sweden. Any increase will take effect annually on 1 February.

Other regulations apply to child support amounts that have been determined in accordance with the laws of another country and/or in foreign currency, and these amounts are adjusted in accordance with the laws of the relevant country. If this applies to you, you must describe this in the agreement.

Changes in the child support amount

The child support amount can be changed if there are changes in the child's needs or the parents' financial situation.

Swedish regulations on child support

In Sweden, child support is regulated by the Children and Parents Code, Chapter 7.
